Florida Virtual School® Employee Receives 20 Years of Dedicated Service Award

Orlando, FL (Dec. 12, 2017) – Florida Virtual School (FLVS®) recently recognized Jennifer Whiting, Chief Technology Innovation Officer, as its longest standing employee. As FLVS celebrates its 20th Anniversary, it recognizes its first-ever 20-year employee.

“Jen’s hard work and years of dedication have really shaped FLVS into what it is today,” said Dr. Jodi Marshall, president and CEO of FLVS. “Her commitment and devotion to the company and students is obvious in everything she does. Jen is a vital part of FLVS, and I am looking forward to many more years of working alongside her.”

Starting in 1997, Whiting was one of the original 10 employees of FLVS. Since then, she has undoubtedly made her mark on the company. In the past 20 years, Whiting has been a Design Specialist, a Project Manager of large instructional technology projects, Director of Information Systems, Chief Academic Officer, and Director of Customer Experience. Whiting has always been committed to keeping FLVS on the cutting edge of technology and effective pedagogy.

“My loyalty to this organization is so high, that I cannot imagine leaving,” said Whiting. “I intend to retire from here in a few years, but my devotion to what we have built will never end. It is an amazing legacy to leave behind us, and watching FLVS grow and mature has been a shining point of my life.”
