FLVS Global Hosts Professional Development Virtual Leadership Training

Orlando, FL (May 15, 2018) – The FLVS Global team recently hosted a Virtual Leadership Training (VLT) to share best practices around online and blended learning solutions. At this two-day workshop, participants were presented with instructional tools and professional development offerings that were created precisely with both teachers and administrators in mind.

The VLT is just one way the FLVS Global team focuses on students, teachers and administrators. FLVS Global Professional Development courses are specifically designed for student motivation, and school leadership, in addition to blended and fully online teaching and learning. A participant of the recent VLT was quoted to say, “We also want you to know how impressed we each were with the agenda, topics, and relevancy of it all. Truly the best professional development we have experienced since working in the virtual world.”

FLVS Global is committed to developing flexible and professional development options to meet the needs of a variety of educational programs. FLVS Professional Development courses are available as online webinars or face-to-face workshops, and can easily be customized. FLVS Professional Development is available year-round and can be scheduled on demand. The FLVS Global Professional Development catalog with all offered courses and teaching series can be found here.

Participants in the April 2018 FLVS VLT

In this school year alone, the FLVS Global team has presented more than 160 hours of professional development to various companies. These courses have been taught in more than 20 states and three countries, Australia, Curaçao and the Czech Republic. About 50 schools have been served, including approximately 60 administration professionals and over 150 teachers.
